AUTHOR BIOGRAPHIES

Karetta Hubbard

As a local businesswoman and entrepreneur, Karetta Hubbard has more than twenty years of experience in consulting, strategic management, and organizational change for companies throughout the U.S., Canada, Europe, and Japan. Having recently turned to literary endeavors, Ms. Hubbard credits her grandchildren as her inspiration and encouragement to put pen to paper.

In 2003 Ms. Hubbard co-founded NewPoint Strategies LLC, a leader within the field of workforce diversity, global diversity, and change management. Throughout her consulting career, Ms. Hubbard's mission has been to bring innovative approaches to "shared cultural wisdom" within organizations. This concept of innovative cross-cultural dialogue is a crucial element of SATAN'S CHAMBER (Fuze Publishing), the spy thriller Ms. Hubbard has co-written with award-winning author Molly Best Tinsley. Ms. Hubbard's vast experience in the international business circuit brings a hard-boiled, pragmatic depth to the fast-paced narrative of SATAN'S CHAMBER.

She lives in McLean, Virginia, with her husband, Jerry Klepner.

Molly Best Tinsley

A former professor of English at the United States Naval Academy, Molly Best Tinsley is the first professor emerita in its history. Dr. Tinsley is also a widely published, award-winning author and playwright whose work has received recognition from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Oregon Book Awards, the Pushcart Prize, the Maryland Arts Council, among others. She is the co-author of The Creative Process (Bedford/St. Martin's), and the author of Throwing Knives (Ohio State University Press) and My Life With Darwin (Houghton Mifflin). Dr. Tinsley's short fiction has been anthologized in the Pushcart Prize Anthology and New Stories from the South, and appeared in journals and periodicals such as Shenandoah, New England Review, Prairie Schooner, and Redbook Magazine. Her plays have been read or staged across the country, from Seattle, to Houston, to New York City and Washington, DC.

Dr. Tinsley has taken her extensive writing experience and partnered with Karetta Hubbard to produce SATAN'S CHAMBER (Fuze Publishing), a spy novel.

Dr. Tinsley currently lives in Ashland, Oregon, where she is active within the literary and theatrical community. She is married to Edwin Miller.
